EIGHT YEARS of planning will soon become a reality with construction commencing on the first two stages of the Central Walk development in Drysdale.

Located only 200 metres from the town centre, initial stages include the development of 63 housing lots and the construction of a $1.5 million linear open space reserve and wetlands that will feature pedestrian bridges, public artwork, and piazza area.

Urban Land Developments Pty Ltd have a strong affinity with the Bellarine Peninsula having recently completed 400 lots at SeaChange Estate in St Leonards and 56 lots at Amalfi Cove in Indented Head.

Central Walk's first sod was turned last week by former land owners Ron and Joan Turner, whose ancestors owned the land for three generations.

The Turners used to grow asparagus on the land and according to Urban Land Development director Ross Closter they are as excited as anyone about the development getting underway.

"The commencement of civil works is a significant milestone for Central Walk, as will be the construction of the first home which is expected to be in October this year," he said.

"Planning for this development commenced eight years ago and it is fantastic to see the vision become reality."

Sales manager Adriana Falcone said the location of Central Walk will allow the entire family to enjoy the benefits of being able to walk to cafés, schools, shops and restaurants.

"It's no wonder stage one has sold out and stage two sales are going strong," she said.

"Central Walk is one of the only estates on the Bellarine where blocks start at 600 square metres and go up to over 850 square metres."

"We are firm believers that kids deserve a backyard, not a courtyard and we have deliberately made blocks bigger to accommodate this."

Winslow Constructors are the appointed contractors for the civil works and will oversee all of the internal works in addition to the full upgrade of Woodville Street, which adjoins the estate to the south.

Central Walk Drysdale will eventually comprise approximately 200 lots.

The National Broadband Network is improving access to healthcare around Australia

"The NBN gives people, especially those in regional areas, better access to healthcare from home. With a high-speed, much more reliable connection, doctors, nurses and specialists can stay in touch with their patients, wherever they are. I'm involved in a movement therapy trial, where a stroke patient in a regional location is connected online to a therapist in Sydney. With the NBN, we get the same level of interaction as if the patient and therapist were in the same room together."

- Dr. Penelope McNulty, Neuroscience Research Australia

Facts and benefits:

- The NBN will deliver access to high-speed, reliable broadband to all of Australia.
- The NBN rollout is underway, prioritising regional Australia.
- The NBN will include a range of technologies: optic fibre, fixed wireless and next-generation satellite services.
- Connecting to the NBN is simple.
